

CARD SORT: CATEGORY CARDS

|                    |                    |
|--------------------|--------------------|
| Militarism  | Alliances   |
| Imperialism | Nationalism |

CARD SORT: SORTING CARDS

A formal agreement between two or more states for mutual support in case of war

Germany controlled colonies in Africa.

Russia had an alliance with Serbia and France.

The belief or desire of a government or people that a country should maintain a strong military capability and be prepared to use it aggressively to defend or promote national interests

France lost two territories, called Alsace-Lorraine in a conflict with Germany in 1871. France strongly wanted these two territories returned, which led to strong anti-German feelings among French citizens. People living in Alsace-Lorraine considered themselves French.

A system in which a country rules other countries, sometimes having used force to get power over them

Identification with one's own nation and support for its interests, especially to the exclusion or detriment of the interests of other nations

From 1910 to 1914, European countries significantly increased their amount of defense spending. France increased defense spending by 10%, Great Britain by 13%, and Germany by 73%.

Great Britain had agreements to protect France and Belgium if they were invaded.

France controlled colonies in Africa and Southeast Asia, called French-Indo China, consisting of present-day Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia.

Germany became a unified country in 1871 and was determined to become a world political power.

The German Navy Law of 1898 increased the number of battleships in Germany from 9 to 12.

|                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| A formal agreement between two or more states for mutual support in case of war                    | Great Britain controlled all of India, called the British Raj.                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| The continent of Africa was under European control except for two countries, Liberia and Ethiopia. | Austria-Hungary was a large empire established in 1867, consisting of many different ethnicities such as Czechoslovakians, Serbians, and Polish people. These different ethnicities did not want to be controlled by the Austro-Hungarian Empire and desired to become their own countries. |

Sources:

Corner, T. (n.d.). World War I: Militarism. University of Arizona.

<http://www.u.arizona.edu/~salvador/Spring%20thru%20February/World%20War%20I/Causes%20of%20World%20War%20I,%20Militarism.pdf>

Kronenbitter, G. (2019, August 15). Alliance system 1914. International Encyclopedia of the First World War.

https://encyclopedia.1914-1918-online.net/article/alliance\_system\_1914

Llewellyn, J., & Thompson, S. (2018, August 14). Imperialism as a cause of World War I. Alpha History.

<https://alphahistory.com/worldwar1/imperialism/>

University of Arizona. (n.d.). World War I: Nationalism.

<http://www.u.arizona.edu/~salvador/Spring%20thru%20February/World%20War%20I/Causes%20of%20WWI%20Nationalism.pdf>