Engage

Begin the lesson by displaying slide 2 from the attached Lesson Slides.

Display slide 3. Share the essential question for this unit. Read the question aloud and tell students that, by the end of the lesson, they will develop ideas about William Golding's use of symbolism.

Display slide 4. Share the lesson's learning objectives.

Distribute the attached Chain Notes handout. Display slide 5. Ask students to answer the question, What makes a good leader? Have them use the instructional strategy, Chain Notes, to aid in their understanding of the characters.

Use the timer in slide 5. Ask students to write as many responses as they can in 90 seconds. When the timer goes off, have students pass their papers to a partner. Ask students to continue to pass their sheets around until they create sufficient lists. Once allotted time is up, stop the activity. Have students share and discuss their responses.

Explore

Display slide 6. Distribute the attached Close Reading Passages with excerpts from chapters 1-3. Have students use the instructional strategy, Categorical Highlighting, as they focus on Jack and Ralph. Ask students to look for the following:

- What specific leadership characteristics do you see in each character?
- What individual qualities are apparent in the excerpts?
- What makes each character unique?
- What would make one a good leader?
- What qualities would not make them good leaders?

Have students highlight Ralph's qualities in one color; Jack's in another.

Explain

Have students return to the list of qualities of a leader they completed in the Chain Notes activity and in the Categorical Highlighting close reading.

Display slide 7 and introduce the T-Chart strategy. Distribute the attached Jack/Ralph Leadership Qualities T-Chart. Instruct them to think specifically about Jack and Ralph and their leadership qualities as they complete their T-Charts.

> Teacher's Note
>
> Make sure that each student has access to their T-Charts for later on in the unit.

Extend

Display slide 8. Explain the Step in, Step Out, Step Back strategy and have students choose a character to focus on.

Teacher's Note

Make sure students are aware this is looking at the characters' perspectives about their experience on the island in general.

Distribute that attached Step In, Step Out, Step Back handout.

Display slide 9. Read the Step In prompt: Given what you see and know at this time, what do you think this person might feel, believe, know, or experience? Direct students to the corresponding box on the handout and give them time to complete this section of the handout based on their chosen character.

Display slide 10. Read the Step Out prompt: What else would you like or need to learn to understand this person's perspective better? Direct students to the corresponding box on the handout. Give students time to complete this section of the handout based on their chosen character.

Display slide 11. Read the Step Back prompt: G*iven your exploration of this perspective so far, what do you notice about your own perspective and what it takes to take somebody else's?* Direct students to the corresponding box on the handout and give them sufficient time to complete this section of the handout based on their chosen character.

Teacher's Note

As students are working on each section, make sure to walk around and check their comprehension and that they are completing the questions appropriately.

Direct students to share out what they reflected on. As they are sharing, remind them to take notes on the handout in the box labeled: Notes about other characters from the share-out.

Evaluate

Display slide 12. Introduce the next activity, True for Who?

Put the students in groups of 3 of 4. There are two options to continue. You can choose to do the True for Who activity digitally with Google Slides or with the paper handout.

> Optional Technology: Digital True for Who with Google Slides
>
> Share the "Force Copy" True for Who Google Slides with each group and have each student use their own device or all group around one. Instruct the students to follow the directions on the first slide. As groups read through each of the following slides, discuss the statement at the top and for whom this statement is true, maybe true for, and not true. The group must reach a consensus in which column each sticky note should be placed. Repeat these steps for each of the statement slides.

Distribute a copy of the attached True for Who? handout to each group. Instruct students to read and follow the directions on the top of the page.

> Optional Slides
> Use slides 13–21 as a whole class after the group discussions to share out what was discussed in each group.

After the students complete the activity, have them choose one of the statements and, using text evidence, briefly write about why they think that statement is fitting for their chosen character.

Students can complete the writing assignment on paper or via Google docs. Have them submit their work to you when completed.

> Teacher's Note: Preparation for Lesson 3
>
> In preparation for Lesson 3, pass out copies of the book Lord of the Flies by William Golding and instruct students to read chapters 4–5 before the next class period.
