Grade Level	9th – 12th Grade	Time Frame	2-3 class period(s)
Subject	Social Studies	Duration	100-150 minutes
Course	U.S. History

Essential Question

What is terrorism? How does terrorism differ from planned acts of military aggression? Why do people commit acts of terror?

Summary

Students will create a definition of terrorism and articulate in a more complex way an understanding of terrorism and issues regarding terrorism. Students will create an oral presentation of terrorist events and their ideological causes.

Snapshot

Engage

Students will brainstorm a beginning definition of terrorism and review definitions of terrorism from various sources.

Explore

Students will create a group definition of terrorism and come to a consensus about what terrorism is.

Explain

Students will identify whether certain events constitute terrorism or not.

Extend

Student groups will investigate and present information about domestic and foreign terrorism events.

Evaluate

Oral presentations of terrorism events rubric will be used to evaluate presentations.

Standards

Oklahoma Academic Standards (Social Studies: United States History (9th through 12th grade))

USH.8.6: Evaluate the rise of terrorism and its impact on the United States including the 1995 bombing of the Murrah Federal Building, the first attack on the World Trade Center Towers in 1993, the attacks on September 11, 2001, the USA PATRIOT Act, and the creation of the Department of Homeland Security.

USH.9.1: Assess George W. Bush's presidency, including the causes, conduct and consequences of the United States led wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, efforts to counter and combat terrorism, and domestic issues such as the FEMA response to Hurricane Katrina and the Great Recession.

Teacher's Note: Prior To Beginning The Lesson (Lesson Prep)

Create signs that say "Picture 1," "Picture 2," and "Both" (they don't have to be fancy; the words printed large on a piece of paper or written on a board is fine as long as there's enough room for students to gather around them without interfering with students at another sign). Place these signs in three corners of the room. Students will physically move to these areas. Be sure also to prepare the poll at www.polleverywhere.com prior to class. See the Explore section for the polleverywhere link and alternative strategies.

Ask students individually (PowerPoint slide three) first to define terrorism or what terrorist acts are in a sentence or two in their notebooks or on a sheet of notebook paper. Students are to also give examples of terrorist acts to support their definition.

Display the instructions for the three corners activity on slide four (this is a variation of the instructional strategy Four Corners). Read the directions aloud to students and then display PowerPoint slide five with the two pictures.

Note

Picture 1 could be domestic terrorism IF the boys are organized as an ideological group (like an anti-Jewish group) and the boy receiving the bullying is a target of their ideology. Picture 2 is a picture of the September 11, 2001, attack on the World Trade Center in New York City and has been declared an act of terrorism.

Students will move to one of the corners of the room that they believe most represents "terrorism." Students discuss within their group why they chose to move where they did. Have each group choose a spokesperson to share why they chose their picture and explain their reasoning with the class.

Explore

Have students move back to their desks and number off into groups of three or four. Give students the handout titled, "Definitions of Terrorism." Students in the groups are to read the definitions of terrorism and come up with a group definition (in their OWN words) that adequately explains what terrorism is.

Once groups have finished, the class will use these definitions to create a whole-class word cloud using EdWordle. Have a person from each group type their definition into the word cloud. You could also have a student representative from each group bring their definitions to you for you to add to the whole-class word cloud. Process the group definitions to create a word cloud. Discuss as a class what common ideas are featured in the word cloud. Try to come up with a class consensus of the definition of terrorism. Conduct a BRIEF class discussion to ask the class as a whole, how is terrorism different from military aggression?

Ask students to look at the pictures again on slide five. Using the class's definition of terrorism and Poll Everywhere, have students decide again, whether pictures 1, 2, or both are pictures of terrorism. You could also just do a show of hands regarding the terrorist pictures and see if the numbers change. Another option is to ask the class aloud if the definitions changed anyone's minds about the pictures. Discuss whether anyone changed their answer to the "What is Terrorism?" slide based on the discussion.

Explain

Pass out the "Are These Actions Terrorism?" handout to all students and read aloud the directions. Allow students to continue to work together in groups. With their group, students are to discuss and to determine whether the following actions are "terrorist" acts through the class definition and the terrorism definitions handout. Allow 30 minutes for this activity. A teacher answer key with explanations is provided.

At this point, students can turn in this paper for a grade or correct their own paper using the PowerPoint slides six and seven. If you want a grade for this paper, you can have students turn in the assignment first and then review the correct answers on the PowerPoint slides.

Extend

Groups will be assigned an identified terrorist act for research. Number groups randomly one through seven. Show PowerPoint slide eight, which explains the oral presentation project. Slide nine lists international and domestic terrorist acts. Groups will research the terrorist event associated with their number on slide nine. Depending on class size, more than one group may research the same event.

Note: Why Include Domestic Terrorism?

While world history standards address only international terrorist events, it is important to demonstrate to students that domestic terrorism is prevalent as well. For that reason, both international and domestic terror events are listed as group prompts on slide nine.

Pass out the "Oral Presentation Rubric" (located under Attachments) to all group members. Discuss the presentation rubric in detail prior to students beginning their research. Determine what assessment value the oral presentation will have for your class. Determine what product the presentation will be: PowerPoint, Google Slides, or Prezi; chart tablet or poster; or maybe a "news" video about the event. If students produce a news video, require that they turn in a written script in addition to their Internet sources.

Evaluate

The "Are These Actions Terrorism?" worksheet and the oral presentations will serve as assessments for this lesson.
