Engage. Which statement attracts you the most? Why?

Extend. Choose two of the statements below. Craft a 2–3 sentence statement to explain how the work of Frederick Douglass and/or William Lloyd Garrison relates to journalism today.

- 1. Journalists help hold people accountable for their actions.*
- 2. Working in the media, journalists can help change the world for the better.*
- 3. It is important for journalists to be curious about the world. It is also important for journalists to be good writers, because once they find a scoop, they need to communicate it as clearly as possible to their audience.*
- 4. Good journalism is about treating people fairly, and about exposing the truth when people are treated unfairly.*
- 5. When journalists share their opinions and views, they help the public to consider how they might think about what is happening in the world.*
