

NAZI THIEF CAUGHT STEALING U.S. MILITARY DOCUMENTS

Norfolk, VA: October 10, 1944

This morning, after months of searching, U.S. military police have finally caught the thief responsible for stealing sensitive government documents from a local Pentagon office.

The young, German man was arrested early yesterday morning while trying to unexplainably enter the same office he robbed months earlier.

Once heroic FBI authorities arrived to the office, the war criminal cowardly fled the scene and engaged several MP squad cars in a high-speed pursuit.

He eventually crashed his unmarked van into a parked vehicle just outside a government office building. He is being charged with theft of sensitive government documents, breaking and entering of a federal military building, resisting military arrest, illegal residency status, intent to share U.S. government information and destruction of federal property.

He foolishly chose to not cooperate with the local war crimes authorities and has stubbornly refused to share any information as to his identity or rank.

He is being held in Fort Leavenworth prison until the details and motive behind the vicious burglaries can be established.

The exact identity of the apprehended man has yet to be confirmed, but FBI investigators have meticulously followed several leads to suggest that the thief is an illegal German immigrant with military ties to a Nazi organization dedicated to bringing about the demise of the United States government.

This same thief has been linked to the theft of thousands of pages of strategic military records from seven different Naval offices around the city. When questioned, he simply stated that he refused to speak until he was granted a Nazi lawyer and given a fair military trial in front of an unbiased jury.

The thief is set to be charged as a war criminal and will be held here in the United States as a prisoner of war.
